

Employment Opportunities for Academics in the Anglo-American World

– a workshop for visiting researchers

When: 26.11.2008, 10:00h-17:00h

Where: Humboldt Haus

Instructor: Thomas Obieglo

A great number of today's highly-qualified university graduates are looking for job opportunities and further professional development in North America or "Down Under" as well as in English-speaking countries in Europe.

- How to go about finding a challenging and interesting position there, be it a post-doc assignment or a tenure-track appointment?
- What are the pre-requisites to apply for a work permit?
- And what are the important aspects when it comes to searching for jobs, and to produce convincing application papers?

These and other related questions will be dealt with in this interactive workshop. The seminar will focus on the academic job markets, i.e. employment opportunities in Higher Education institutions, some of the major differences to the conventions of "free market"-applications will also be mentioned.
