We are aware that all our corporate activities are effecting the environment in some way. Hence, we strive after balancing our economical objectives with our sustainability goals. And sustainability means to us more than just “green labels” and meeting minimum requirements. In order to take all relevant aspects into consideration we took up the UN Sustainable Development Goals and selected those on which our activities may have an effect.

Various Goals – One Mission

Even if we can only contribute to a limited degree to the achievement of the – for us relevant – UN Sustainable Development Goals No. 3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 12 and 13, we will try the best possible and won't hide behind any labels. We want to relentlessly improve, as we know that there is no finish line...

WE are responsible

It is important to us not only to know the processes, but also to steer them ourselves. This is the only way we can continuously develop the sustainable standards in the long term and also personally accompany and ensure them. With this in mind, when choosing our production facility, we chose what we believe to be the most advanced and innovative production facility in the sports industry and concentrated our production there.

Human factor (Goals 3, 5, 8)

Despite computer-controlled systems, the human factor is still the decisive factor in the production of functional clothing - from the skilled craftsmanship of the seamstresses to the programmer on the printing system. For this reason, fair pay and flawless working conditions are a basic requirement for us.

State-of-the-art technology (Goals 6, 9, 12, 13)

State-of-the-art systems are not only important for efficiency and precision, but also for clean production without polluting the environment. For example, the new screen printing system with completely filtered wastewater that is reuseable.

Material Selection (Goals 12, 13)

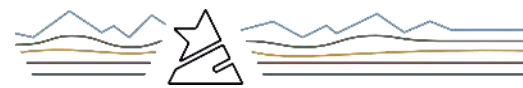

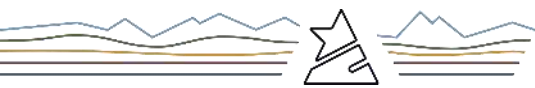

In addition to the functional properties, the ecological aspects are decisive for us when choosing our materials. We are increasingly trying to use natural, renewable fibers from certified organic cultivation. If we use polyester or nylon fibers, they are mostly recycled materials.

Durable products (Goals 12, 13)

Better a really good bike short that you can enjoy for a long time ... because the most environmentally friendly bike short is not a new bike short. That is why we try our best in this regard - by the way not only with bike shorts.

All for one and one for all

Versatility in Sports

If you are going up or down the mountain on skis, if you are carving your line in the powder on a board or if you are cruising through the woods or through the city on a bike, the requirements for well-performing clothing are pretty much the same. If you had one great performing outfit for all your winter activities – from the top of the mountain to the heart of the city – you would not need to worry about many other mediocre special outfits.

Performance Layering

1. A base layer with a soft touch on the skin wicking moisture away and making it feel dry.
 2. A mid layer that allows air to circulate and keeping a warming climate zone around the body.
 3. An outer layer that keeps wind and weather outside but allows moisture and to get from the inside to the outside.
- Adapt to any situation – being weather or sport - by changing layers.

Best Materials

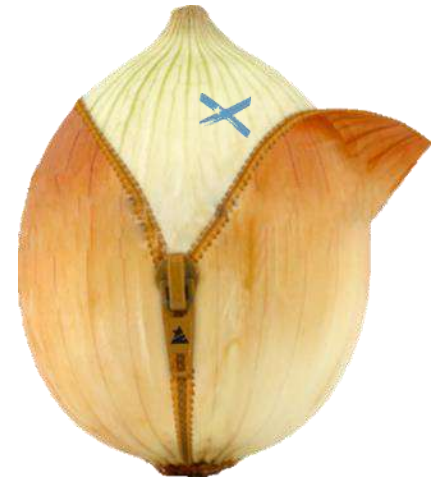

The best materials work best – regardless the sport. Being it with regard to the moisture wicking properties, the soft touch or the eco-friendliness: the bottom line remains the same.

Life is a trail, ride it your style

Obviously there is no truth, when it comes to style... But most important is that you feel good with what you are wearing – on top of the mountain or in the heart of the city. Design, fit, colors, materials, performance properties as well as sustainability aspects contribute to how you feel about what you are wearing.

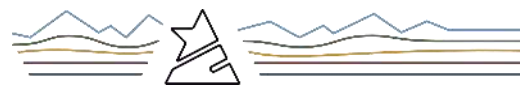

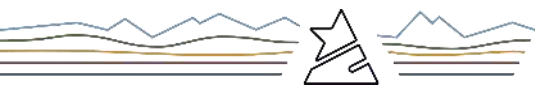

Mix & Match

We put our products into segments to better structure and explain our line. However, you can mix and match the products from different segments in so many ways. So, you might find your favorite MTB-Shirt in the X-Mountain Flow segment and you even might use it for skiing in winter after your colleagues in the office admired your smart casual style...
