1998... Korea is hit by the IMF crisis. The Korean won is barely worth its weight and bankruptcies are piling up like litter on the streets. But in Pusan, among the fish and tough sea-going men, the narcotics market is flourishing as never before. In this setting, Sangdo, a low-level drug dealer, and Doh, the drug detective, face off as they both seek to catch Jangchul, the key figure in Korea's drug world. This is a battle to the death and the two men will stop at nothing in this hard-boiled Korean edge thriller.

THE BRIDGE AT NOGUNRI

Director: LEE Sangwoo

Genre: War Drama

Releasing Date: 2007

The Korean war does not start well for the US. They are being routed by the North Koreans and despite US reinforcements from Tokyo, the US army is making a hasty disorganized retreat to the southern-most city of Pusan. On the path to Pusan is the village of Jogunri, near the village of Nogunri. The US Army orders all the villagers out of Jogunri, warning them that the North Koreans are coming. Some 500 make their way, children on their backs, leading ox carts laden with belongings. But word is circulating among the US forces that Northern soldiers may be hiding among the civilian refugees. As the Jogunri villagers approach Nogunri, an American airplane suddenly swoops in and strafes and bombs the civilians, killing many. In the ensuing chaos, the US soldiers force the remaining 400 villagers into a cave under a bridge. The US soldiers then open fire. In the end, only 25 manage to survive the massacre. This film is based on real events and on the book, "The Bridge at Nogunri," written by the Pulitzer Prize winning journalist team that broke the story in 2000.
